

Jason Doctor, ATC, ROT

During his 20-year career as a certified athletic trainer, Jason Doctor has worked in the secondary school, college and industrial settings. He earned his Bachelor of Science degrees in Athletic Training and Exercise and Sport Science from East Carolina University. Jason was a member of the Chesterfield County EMS training group for concussions and spine boarding. He was also a guest lecturer for EMS continuing education sessions on heat related illness treatment. Jason has been a member of the VATA for 20 years and currently holds office as the Eastern Region Representative. Seven years ago, Jason transitioned out of athletic training full-time and into medical sales.

He started his sales career with Performance Health as a Cramer Products rep before moving over to Medco. Jason is proud of the Cramer Mentorship program for new graduate AT's going into the profession that he established and implemented. Now with ESSITY, Jason is the Orthopedic sales rep for Virginia. He is also a registered Orthopedic Technician providing cast training for orthopedic clinics and athletic trainers across his territory. Jason has been a presenter at the Virginia and Mid Atlantic athletic training meetings teaching casting and splinting courses.

Jason was born and raised in Port St Lucie, Florida. He currently resides in Richmond with his wife Kate (also an AT) and 3 children Madie, Graham, and Harris.
